

Westley,

I was looking over the new additions to the inventory yesterday and just wanted to take a moment and congratulate you on your new listing on Elkwood. Only a small fraction (approximatly 2%) of the overall listings are entered on Sundays. That makes you rare and shows your professional dedication. Whether one of our associates at XXX brings you a buyer, or you sell it through another agent, I wish you the best. Congratulations!

Carpe diem,

Chris

Westley,

The highest mark of professionalism in real estate is building trust with your clients to bring new inventory onto the market. With that said, I just wanted to take a moment and congratulate you on your new listing on Elkwood. Whether one of our associates at XXX brings you a buyer, or you sell it through another agent, I wish you the best and hope you have a great balance to your week.

Westley,

Bringing new inventory onto the market is the core function of our business. It takes a professional with a fair amount of skill, tenacity and a touch of providence. With that said, I just wanted to take a moment and congratulate you on your new listing on Elkwood. Whether one of our associates at XXX brings you a buyer, or you sell it through another agent, I wish you the best and hope you have a great upcoming weekend.

Westley,

I was looking over the new additions to the inventory yesterday and just wanted to take a moment and congratulate you on your new listing on Elkwood. It's a great sign of a professional to strategically input the listing in time for the weekend search traffic. Most agents never think about those details. You did and that says a great deal about you.

Whether one of our associates at XXX brings you a buyer, or you sell it through another agent, I wish you the best.

Carpe diem,

Chris

Westley,

In a day and age where everyone seems to want to dip in your pocket or sell you something, I just wanted to offer a heartfelt appreciation without any strings.
